

Introducing our Chief Medical Officer Report

Rob Miles
Key Account Manager
Legal & General

This month, we're proud to present the first edition of our brand new Chief Medical Officer (CMO) report series, with our CMO, Dr Tarun Gupta.

In this edition, we look at how good work can be beneficial for health - combining individual and group protection insights to help shape the future of the insurance industry, and to showcase how good work can be beneficial for overall health.

Take a look at the video opposite from our CMO, Dr Tarun Gupta.

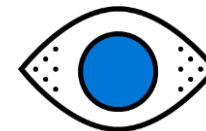

So, why are we introducing this report?

- We want to provide a forward-looking, strategic view on UK health and wellbeing as it relates to individual and group protection
- To showcase how good work can be beneficial for overall health for individuals
- To show the role that income protection and group income protection can play in the above, through the valuable added-value services that come with these protection products

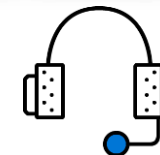

As Tarun mentions in his video, keep an eye out for further editions of the report throughout 2024 on topics including diversity, equality and inclusion and digital health and wellbeing.

To download the report, click on the link contained within this one pager and if you have any questions, please don't hesitate to reach out to myself.

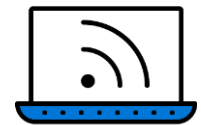

Take a look at Dr Tarun Gupta's video here.

Watch

Listen

Download report